Everybody's Talking!

Bush rescue: A backpacker from Germany was rescued after spending nearly two weeks lost in the remote wilderness of Western Australia. Her van got stuck on an isolated track, and after leaving it, she lost her bearings and couldn't find her way back. With little to eat and only rainwater to drink, she endured cold nights and harsh, unforgiving terrain while trying to reach help. Eventually, a local driver spotted her walking nearby and brought her to safety before she was flown to a hospital for care. Authorities called her recovery extraordinary given the extreme conditions. The ordeal has renewed attention on the dangers of the Outback and the need to remain with a vehicle if stranded.

Painted heritage: In the southern hills of Chios, Greece, the village of Pyrgi draws visitors with its maze of homes covered in bold black-and-white designs. Each wall is decorated through xysta, an old plaster-carving technique where layers of lime are scraped away to form geometric motifs. The method may have roots in both Genoese and Ottoman influences, blending centuries of history into a single art form. Once built as a fortified settlement to guard the island's valuable mastic trade, Pyrgi's compact streets and stone towers still reflect its defensive past. Only a few artisans now keep the xysta tradition alive, working carefully to preserve this symbol of community pride and island history.

Walking giants: Researchers believe they now understand how the famous stones were moved into place on Rapa Nui, better known as Easter Island. Using 3D models, field trials, and physics-based simulations, scientists from Binghamton University and the University of Arizona found that the statues' forward-leaning shape and curved bases allowed them to rock side to side as they advanced. In experiments, a small group "walked" a full-scale replica using ropes, supporting long-standing local traditions about how the moai were transported. The study suggests the islanders engineered both the statues and roads for this motion, revealing a resourceful approach to one of archaeology's oldest mysteries.

Tiny fighter: In Ankeny, Iowa (U.S.), a baby born 133 days early and recognized as the world's most premature defied every prediction to survive after birth. Arriving far sooner than expected, he weighed less than a can of soda and required immediate intensive care. Doctors used advanced equipment and careful monitoring to support his heart and lungs, and his parents spent long months beside him in the hospital. Over time, the baby's condition improved enough for him to go home after a lengthy recovery. His story reminds families and doctors everywhere that medical care and persistence can help even the most fragile lives survive and grow.

Did You Know...

Mercury mystery: Unlike most metals that stay solid until heated, mercury is liquid even at room temperature. Scientists traced this unusual trait to its unique electron structure, giving the element its puzzling behavior.

Parrot vandals: High in the mountains of New Zealand lives the Kea, a parrot quite unlike others. Known for their sharp minds and bold nature, these birds often rip pieces off parked cars, turning ordinary objects into their playground.

Sneeze speed: A sneeze can blast out of your body at roughly 100 miles per hour (161 km/h). That burst of air carries countless tiny particles, which is why sneezing into a tissue or elbow helps keep others safe.

Story struggle: Before becoming a famous children's author, Dr. Seuss nearly gave up on his first book after 27 rejections. Then a lucky meeting with a friend in publishing finally brought to print And to Think That I Saw It on Mulberry Street.

Pasta legacy: U.S. president Thomas Jefferson came back from Europe with a pasta press, eager to enjoy the dish at home. But it was his enslaved chef James Hemings who refined the recipe, making mac and cheese a true American favorite.

On the Lighter Side

How is a heart like a musician? They both have a beat. There was no reason why my glasses fogged up. I was mystified! My doctor said jogging can add years to my life. He's right. I feel 10 years older already.

Actor: "Have you seen me on TV?"
Fan: "On and off."
Actor: "How did you like me?"
Fan: "Off."
